Leading Engineering Firm Makes Key Hire
Moulinet Part of Corporate Expansion at Bury+Partners

AUSTIN, TEXAS – February 5, 2008 Bury+Partners is pleased to welcome Dominic (Nick) Moulinet as Director of Business Development. Moulinet will lead the Firm's client acquisition and development activities. He joins Bury+Partners from Jacobs Carter Burgess, formerly Carter & Burgess, where he directed client development for the firm's Austin office.

Moulinet's hiring comes on the heels of another year of record growth for the Austin-based engineering and consulting firm. Bury+Partners has doubled in size over the last three years with an employee count now nearing 450 employees across 12 offices in Texas and Virginia. In 2007, the firm's move to downtown Austin represented the single largest relocation in the central business district.

The firm has a number of national clients including Target, Costco, and Home Depot. "The number of our national clients continues to grow. This growth demands dedicated coordination and communication between the client side and the project management teams in each of the Bury offices. Nick's role will be vital in our execution of this strategy," says Paul J. Bury III, P.E., president of Bury+Partners.

The new role that Moulinet will fill is central to Bury+Partners forecasted growth and commitment to client service. Bury has been and continues to be a highly visible player in the central Texas economy. Moulinet's addition to the team is expected to leverage the synergy between national offices and clients. "Nick brings to the Bury family a deep understanding of our industry as well as a unique ability to connect with people. Each of our markets will benefit from having Nick's eyes and ears on the bigger picture," say Jim Knight, Managing Principal for Bury's Austin operation.

"I have been watching Bury's star rise for some time," says Moulinet. "In this business, if you are going to hitch your wagon to a player, they don't get much better than Bury. The opportunity to play a major role in the continued expansion of services for our clients is exciting and I look forward to the road ahead."

Moulinet received a Bachelor of Science in Urban Planning and Real Estate Development from University of Southern California, Los Angeles, CA
